Becoming global citizens

by REBECCA J. STOLTZFUS '83, President of Goshen College

FIFTY YEARS AGO this fall, the first Study-Service Term (SST) units were launched after a visionary faculty voted unanimously to make international education a required part of our core curriculum, with our own faculty leading groups of students in a full academic term of experiential learning. This was a phenomenal innovation for any U.S. college or university at that time, and continues to make Goshen College outstanding today.

This year, as we celebrate SST and imagine its future, we are focusing on our core value of “global citizenship.” I offer three propositions for us to consider as we seek to live into this value ever more fully:

First, global citizenship entails empathy and imagination — the capacity to see from the others’ point of view. As we grow up, part of being human is to be trained in the ways of our family and our culture. We need this cultural blanket to feel secure, especially during childhood. But to be educated toward global citizenship, we need to move outside of our home culture and, if we do not shrink from it, to feel the profound disorientation of that. Might this be a part of what Jesus meant when he said: “unless you change and become like little children, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven”? (Matthew 18:3)

Second, global citizens are trained to see and feel the connections between things — connections direct and indirect, positive and negative, between our daily lives and those of other people nearby and in distant places — and as we see these connections, to explore the ethical obligations that follow from those connections.

Third, global citizens encourage in one another the disposition and skills to act on those obligations in the interests of transformative justice. We are willing to use or even to sacrifice the rights and privileges of our individual citizenship to be a good neighbor, trusting that ultimately we will not be diminished, but enriched. Our most limited resources are not money or airfares or even visas; they are compassion, imagination and courage. Can we educate one another in these capacities?

This is the work of faith. Martin Luther King, Jr. said, “When we see social relationships controlled everywhere by the principles which Jesus illustrated in his life — trust, love, mercy and altruism — then we shall know that the kingdom of God is here.”

This year, Goshen College is a community comprised of students from 37 states and 27 countries and alumni living in 50 states and 82 countries. Let us educate one another with empathy and imagination, seeking beauty and goodness in each other. See the connections. Explore the obligations arising from those connections. Act in the interests of justice. Global citizenship at Goshen College begins wherever we are, right now.

About the cover

Study-Service Term (SST) is all about new relationships, cultures and ways of knowing ourselves. Similarly, stamps help carry messages of life, love and learnings thousands of miles to keep people connected. Their rich colors, beautiful landscapes, notable people and striking designs share mini-stories of art, culture and history of the countries they belong to. These stamps also highlight the ways things have changed in our digital world, since today's participants on SST rarely write or receive letters from home. Thanks to local alumni stamp collectors Doug Risser '70 and Larry Gautsche '74 who shared old and newer stamps from all 24 SST destinations over the years, taking us on this global tour!

GC sees third year of traditional undergraduate enrollment growth

The number of traditional undergraduate students attending Goshen College continues to rise for the third straight year, with overall enrollment remaining steady at 927 total students, including 762 traditional undergraduate students, 83 students in adult programs and 82 students in graduate programs. This is a 2 percent growth in traditional undergraduate students over last year.

Goshen College welcomed an incoming class of 200 first-year students, making it the first time in a decade for enrolling 200 or more such students in consecutive years. In addition, 51 students transferred to Goshen.

A watery rite of presidential passage

On Aug. 29 (when the weather was much warmer than during Inauguration Weekend in February), following the opening convocation, students gathered around Schrock Plaza to dunk President Rebecca Stoltzfus '83 in the fountain, a tradition that goes back to 1971 when students dunked President J. Lawrence Burkholder '39 during his inauguration celebration activities, and has continued with six presidents since.

Bruce Stahly '67 appointed GC board chair

Bruce Stahly '67, a retired superintendent of Goshen Community Schools, has been appointed as chair of Goshen College's board of directors as of July 1, 2018. He replaces Conrad Clemens '85, professor of pediatrics and public health and associate dean for graduate medical education at the University of Arizona College of Medicine, whose term as chair ended in June 2018.

Students seek experience through summer Inquiry Programs

This summer, five students participated at a camp or in a congregation with inquiry programs. Camping Inquiry Program (CIP) participants connected with a church-related camping or retreat center where they experienced nature and outdoor ministry. Students serving in the Ministry Inquiry Program (MIP) were engaged in a congregation learning about church ministry.

Nathan Berkey, sophomore music major from Goshen, served at Camp Amigo in Michigan.

Sondra Flores-Reyes, a junior English major from Goshen, served with Camp Eberhart in Michigan.

Levi Glick, sophomore Sign Language interpreting major from Salem, Oregon, served with Drift Creek Camp in Oregon.

Maple Scholars tackle variety of summer research projects

Thirteen Goshen College students participated in this year's Maple Scholars research program, an eight-week program which gives undergraduate students the unique opportunity to create and present scholarly works.

Ben Hathaway, a sophomore film production major from Goshen, worked with Kyle Hufford, assistant professor of communication, to create a longform documentary dubbed "The Goshen Schindler's List," about Goshen's Plaut family, who saved more than 13 families from the Holocaust.

Jose Ortiz, a senior molecular biology/biochemistry and physics major from Goshen, and Landon Weldy, a senior history major from Goshen, worked with Jan Bender Shetler '78, professor of history, to better understand the experience of Latino students who participate in the college's Study-Service Term (SST).

Rudin Mucaj, a senior history major from Fier, Albania, worked with Justin Heinzekehr '06, director of institutional research and assessment, to study the history of socialism and its connections with Judeo-Christian religion.

Laura Hoover, a senior broadcasting major from Chesterton, Indiana, worked with Jason Samuel '92, assistant professor of communication, to create a series of audio pieces that celebrated the 60 years of WGCS.

Nick Schrock, a junior mathematics and history double major from Goshen, worked with David Housman, professor of mathematics, to research game theory, the mathematical study of situations of conflict and/or cooperation.

Bryce Yoder, a junior computer science major from Lancaster, Pennsylvania, worked with Randy Horst '82, professor of art, to design an animation course that aimed to be offered as part of a new multi-discipline based game development minor at the college.

In Memoriam

Professor Emeritus of Music Lon H. Sherer

Lon H. Sherer, a violinist, conductor and professor emeritus of music at Goshen College, died on June 9, at the age of 85. He joined the music department as a professor and violin teacher in 1959, and then retired from the college in 1998 after 39 years of teaching.

Sherer directed the orchestra, founded in the 1950s, throughout his years at the college. He played a role in the establishment of many durable traditions at the college and community, including the Lecture-Music Series (which later became the Performing Arts Series), the biannual opera production and the Concerto-Aria Competition and Concert. He led an "Early Music" revival in the 1960s that introduced a generation of students to baroque, renaissance and medieval music. And he served on the editorial board of the American Music Teacher and was the Indiana Music Teachers Association Teacher of the Year in 1989.

His unexpected loss of hearing in one ear led to a deeper understanding of teaching and learning, and to the widely read book about that professional journey: "Practicing: A Liturgy of Self-Learning" (Pinchpenny Press).

Sherer was preceded in death by his wife, Kathryn '54, in 2012; and a grandson, Nicholas Stoltzfus, in 1992. He is survived by his three children, Mark '81 (Rhonda '83); Karen '81 (Duane '81) Stoltzfus; and Michael '82 (Patsy '83); and by four grandchildren, Monica Sherer, Kate Stoltzfus '14, Melinda Sherer and Emily Stoltzfus '19.

SCOREBOARD SPRING 2018

BASEBALL (22-29, 12-15 CL)

The Maple Leafs posted their best conference record in the six-year tenure of head coach Alex Childers '09, who became the third-winningest coach in program history. On the field, Ryan Hartig '18 (Woodstock, Ontario) and junior Ben Longacre (Barto, Pennsylvania) led the team at the plate, batting .368 and .358 respectively, while starting all 51 games. Longacre rapped a team-high 67 hits including 22 doubles, 4 triples, 49 runs scored and 27 runs batted in: his double and run figures were both the highest in school history. Both men earned honorable-mention all-conference honors, as did junior closer Colby Malson (Tipton, Indiana), who set single-season and career records for saves with 10 and 14 respectively. Hartig graduates with the school record for career games played at 210, while senior first baseman Brad Stoltzfus '18 (Goshen) set a career record with 133 walks and tied the mark with 113 walks drawn.

SOFTBALL (16-37-1, 8-26-1 CL)

Goshen set six program single-season records (at bats, hits, doubles, home runs, walks and innings pitched). Junior infielder Katherine Boyer (Rosamond, California) led the team with a .319 batting average and 51 hits en route to all-conference recognition. Four other Maple Leafs batted at least .300, including sophomore Rianna Koteles (Wixom, Michigan), who matched a single-season record with 12 doubles in the 54 games. Senior Brooke Maes (Goshen) wrapped up her career with Maple Leaf career records in walks (62), games played (187) and home runs (18). Alexis Carpenter '18 (Central Lake, Michigan) pitched a record 166 2/3 innings and appeared in 35 games. She was named to the Crossroads League gold glove team.

MEN'S OUTDOOR TRACK AND FIELD (10TH IN CL, 69TH AT NAIA NATIONAL MEET)

Sophomore Vincent Kibunja (Nakuru, Kenya) took fourth place in the 5,000 meters, setting a personal record with a time of 15:35.11, as the Maple Leafs finished 10th in the league-championship meet. The team sent a pair of athletes to nationals as Sawyer Biddle '18 (White Heath, Illinois) took All-American honors with an eighth-place finish in the 5,000-meter race walk and Brenner Burkholder '18 (Topeka, Kansas) finished 38th in the marathon.

WOMEN'S OUTDOOR TRACK AND FIELD (9TH IN CL)

Kayla Gray '18 (#540, Bridgton, Maine) finished seventh in the 5,000-meter race walk at the NAIA national championship, claiming her third career All-American honor in that event. The Maple Leafs took ninth place in the conference meet behind a sixth-place showing in the 4x100-meter relay and a sixth-place mark from sophomore Suzette Rodriguez (Goshen) in the hammer. In the team's full-squad meets, GC posted 13 top-three finishes.

MEN'S VOLLEYBALL (1-6 AS CLUB TEAM)

The Maple Leafs opened their club season with a win over an NAIA varsity program from Calumet St. Joseph before playing half a dozen more times against other NAIA teams as well as club teams from NCAA schools. The 2019 team will be Goshen's 14th varsity sport: Coach Jim Daugherty's team will open its season with six straight home matches, beginning Jan. 18.

HAROLD WATSON STARTS NEW ROLE AS COLLEGE'S ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

HAROLD M. WATSON, a decorated leader, administrator and marketer of intercollegiate athletics, joined the Maple Leafs as athletic director in early September.

The Evanston, Illinois, native came to Goshen from Georgia Southern University, where he was assistant athletic director for strategic marketing. Watson has experience in all three NCAA divisions and participated in the NCAA's diversity and inclusion forum in 2016.

He holds a bachelor's degree from MacMurray College in Jacksonville, Illinois, where he was a fullback and vice president of the Black Student Union, and a master's degree in sports management from Western Illinois University.

"The guiding principle to my work in college athletics hangs in creating a first-class student-athlete experience that allows them to grow as people who are ready to be outstanding members of the global community we share," Watson said. "Goshen is an institution that really cares about preparing its students for life after college. That is me at the core. I want to see our student-athletes succeed in all facets of their life, including academics, athletics and community life, while they are in school, but additionally, and more importantly, after they leave our campus."

Watson and his wife Christine have a young son, Carter.

AWARD WINNERS HONORED AT MAY BANQUET

The Maple Leaf Athletic Department recognized its 2017-18 award winners at its second annual dessert banquet on May 10. Junior Chelsea Foster (Indianapolis) and junior Ollie Smith (York, England) were named female and male athletes of the year, respectively, while women's volleyball player Christy Swartzendruber '18 (Shickley, Nebraska) and senior men's soccer player Spencer Aeschliman (Salem, Oregon) were tabbed female and male scholar-athletes of the year. Men's soccer coach Arron Patrick was picked coach of the year by his colleagues. In addition, the department honored 16 national qualifiers, 21 all-conference athletes, 12 conference players of the week, 30 school record setters and 46 NAIA scholar-athletes. For a full list of 2017-18 award winners, visit goleafs.net/1718awards.

GOSHEN NAMED NAIA CHAMPIONS OF CHARACTER INSTITUTION FOR 17TH STRAIGHT YEAR

Goshen College was one of 171 colleges and universities to earn the Champions of Character Five-Star Institution label from the NAIA in early September. The program measures each institution's commitment to the NAIA Champions of Character initiative, with points falling into five categories that represent key areas: character training, conduct in competition, character recognition, academic focus and character promotion. Goshen is one of two Indiana colleges to be named a Champions of Character institution every year since the award began in 2002. The Crossroads League was also recognized as a Champions of Character conference.

2018 Alumni Awards

During Homecoming Weekend 2018, five outstanding alumni were honored for their longtime commitment to service and the college's core values.

Port Louis, Republic of Mauritius

U.S. Ambassador

History Major

Photo contributed

CULTURE FOR SERVICE AWARD

David Reimer '84

David Reimer '84 is a career member of the Senior Foreign Service and, on Dec. 13, 2017, was sworn in as U.S. Ambassador to the Republic of Mauritius and the Republic of Seychelles, two island nations in the Indian Ocean off the southeast coast of Africa.

While studying abroad during his Study-Service Term (SST) in Belize, Reimer interviewed a United States economic officer at the U.S. Embassy in Belize City for a final paper about the economic and commercial relations between the U.S. and Belize. Years later, he would find himself in that same office, only then the desk was his.

After graduating from Goshen College in 1984, and earning a Master of Public and International Affairs degree from the University of Pittsburgh and working for the U.S. Department of Agriculture for five years, he joined the U.S. Foreign Service, and, because of his SST experience, he was sent to Belize, where he worked for several years.

Originally from Smithville, Ohio, Reimer's path to becoming a U.S. Ambassador has taken him all over the world. He has received eight top State Department performance awards, and is known for his extensive knowledge of Africa and his outstanding leadership and communication skills.

Before college, Reimer spent several years living in Kenya and Ethiopia with his parents, which he credits, along with studying history and economics at Goshen College and his SST experience, for his success as a foreign officer.

Having spent about two-thirds of his career overseas, Reimer has served as the deputy chief of mission at the U.S. Embassy in Nouakchott, Mauritania (2012-2014); senior refugee coordinator for the U.S. Embassy Baghdad, Iraq (2011-2012); Deputy Director of the Africa Bureau of East African Affairs (2009-2011); Refugee and Migration Officer, U.S. Mission Geneva, Switzerland (2006-2009); Economic Officer, U.S. Embassy Port-au-Prince, Haiti (2004-2006) and Economic Officer, U.S. Consulate Milan, Italy (2000-2003). He spent time at the U.S. Department of State's Economic Bureau (1996-2000), did economic work for the U.S. Embassy in Bonn, Germany, and the U.S. Embassy in Belize City, Belize. He speaks French, Italian and German.

Reimer lives in Port Louis, Republic of Mauritius, with his wife, Simonetta Romagnolo. He is a member of Oak Grove Mennonite Church in Smithville, Ohio.

Goshen

Bilingual Therapist

Interdisciplinary Major

CULTURE FOR SERVICE AWARD

Brian Yoder-Schlabach '07

Patricia Ebersole Zwier '76

As a bilingual therapist, Patricia Ebersole Zwier '76, has counseled couples and individuals in Latin America and the United States, and is now mentoring the next generation of bilingual professionals at Oaklawn in Goshen.

Growing up in Archbold, Ohio, Zwier's worldview unfolded during her Goshen College Study-Service Term (SST) in Honduras. Several years after graduating, she returned to Honduras to work at a Mennonite church in San Pedro Sula doing leadership formation for young adults. While there, she met her husband, Joel Zwier, who was working with the Christian Reformed Church in development work. Together they started a family in San Pedro Sula.

Soon after the birth of their first child, the couple moved to Santo Domingo in the Dominican Republic, where Zwier eventually began doing marriage counseling for young couples.

In 1992, Zwier completed a study leave with her family to the United States to attend graduate school at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. A year later they returned to Santo Domingo, where Zwier found an internship as a family counselor.

Zwier also began taking one class at a time at La Universidad Autónoma de Santo Domingo, and six years later graduated with two master's degrees from two countries in counseling and family therapy. Zwier soon joined a practice run completely by Dominican women, where she worked for 11 years.

Thirty years and four adult children later, Zwier and her husband have found their way back to Goshen. As a bilingual therapist, Zwier enjoys participating in training and mentoring the next generation of bilingual professionals at Oaklawn.

Zwier sees all kinds of clients, including those without documents. She maintains that what has allowed her to be successful in the United States was what she learned in Santo Domingo: relationships and community matter.

Patricia Zwier and Joel Zwier live in Goshen and attend Assembly Mennonite Church. They are the parents of Elisa Zwier '03, Sarah Zwier '08, David Zwier '12 and James Zwier.

Jes Stoltzfus Buller '08

Jes Stoltzfus Buller '08, Peace Education Coordinator for Mennonite Central Committee (MCC), knows firsthand how messy the process of peacemaking can be.

Shortly after graduating from Goshen College with a double major in sociology and Bible, religion and philosophy in 2008, Buller moved to Colombia as a part of Mennonite Central Committee's Seed Program. For eight years, Buller worked as a facilitator and community organizer on Colombia's Pacific coast.

Buller was originally placed in Zambrano, Colombia, a small town of less than ten thousand people near the Caribbean coast, doing community organizing and peacebuilding trainings. After her volunteer years ended, Buller stayed and worked as the director of the Seed Program for two years, then continued as a seconded worker to the organization Sembrandopaz (sowing peace), on local peacebuilding initiatives.

Buller was amazed at the dedication of the Colombians in the face of decades of conflict.

She often found herself sitting at meetings between community members and local government officials, taking notes and organizing ideas. Thanks to the hard work of her and others at Sembrandopaz, Buller would witness victories such as community peace marches, reparation hearings, and the building of key roads and other infrastructure such as new schools in her time with the organization.

During Buller's time in Colombia, local leaders were able to get the attention of government officials and, with a good deal of compromise and effort, work side-by-side to improve conditions in their communities.

However, in March 2015, Buller was in a motorcycle accident that resulted in a broken femur, burns and other significant damage. The resulting surgeries and rehabilitation put her on a long road to recovery, and much of her peacebuilding work on hold. She eventually returned to Goshen for further medical treatment with her husband, Willian.

Buller wants people to understand that the process of compromise is messy and time consuming.

"Peace is ugly," said Buller. "And yet, truly, I believe that a huge amount of peacebuilding is how we talk to each other."

Buller lives in Goshen with her husband, Willian Murillo, and their 10-month old daughter Belen. They attend Walnut Hill Mennonite Church.

Penina Acayo Laker '11

Penina (Acayo) Laker '11, a former Maple Leaf volleyball and track and field All-American from Kampala, Uganda, uses visual design to take a human-centered approach to solving social problems — with a particular focus on education and healthcare related issues in East Africa.

On campus, Laker was known as one of the best athletes, setting records and receiving awards in volleyball and track and field. In 2009, she was the first Maple Leaf volleyball player to be named Mid-Central College Conference Player of the Year, the first Goshen NAIA First Team All-American in volleyball, and was ranked eighth in the country with 4.3 kills a game.

As a member of the track and field team, Laker won three conference championships (high jump, 2008; triple jump 2009 and 2010), held the GC record in the indoor and outdoor triple jump and in 2010 was the national runner-up and an NAIA All-American at both the indoor and outdoor national championships in the triple jump.

Off the court and the track, Laker was also known for her quick smile and positive attitude, her willingness to give back and help others — whether by holding volleyball clinics for kids, speaking to youth or raising money — and for her passion for graphic design that makes a difference.

In 2013, Laker graduated with a master of fine arts degree in visual communication design from Kent State University, then briefly worked at Notre Dame as a research associate for visual communication design. She is currently working as an assistant professor of communication design at Washington University in St. Louis, and regularly travels to Uganda to conduct research and lead DesignEd Uganda workshops to equip young people with skills in design and creative problem-solving.

Whether in Uganda or the United States, Laker enjoys broadening student's ideas for what can be accomplished with technology and design and exploring the importance of human-centered design.

Laker lives in St. Louis with her husband, Kyle '09, and their two-year old daughter, Christina. They attend Grace and Peace Fellowship.

Byron Shenk '63

Byron Shenk '63 has spent 67 years – including the last 28 years at George Fox University – shaping students and athletes physically, mentally and spiritually.

Shenk spent his childhood in the Pacific Northwest where, after graduating from high school in 1956, he and his identical twin brother spent a few years working as loggers in the mountains of Oregon.

Eventually, Shenk's older brother encouraged the two to attend Goshen College. Shenk graduated from GC in 1963 with a health and human performance major. Soon after, he began working as a physical education professor at both GC and Bethany High School. He also began coaching GC's men's soccer and track and field teams.

In 1966, Shenk left to do missionary work in India as part of the Mennonite

Board of Missions. Upon returning from India in 1969, Shenk earned a master's degree in physical education from the University of Oregon in 1970.

Shenk became a professor at Eastern Mennonite University, where he worked for 17 years. In addition to teaching, Shenk coached wrestling, men's soccer, and men's and women's track and field teams.

In 1987, Shenk went to the University of Virginia to earn his Ed.D. in sports medicine. He also got certification from the National Athletic Trainers' Association and became a certified athletic trainer.

Shenk took a position with George Fox University in 1990 as a half-time professor and half-time physical trainer. There, he founded and became the first coach of George Fox's women's soccer team. His work with the team would earn him a spot in George Fox's sports hall of fame in 2004.

He was named the National Soccer Coaches Association of America Women's Coach of the Year for the Far West Region in both 1992 and 1998, and was the Northwest Conference Women's Coach of the Year in 1998. He also earned a national meritorious service award from the National Christian College Athletic Association for previous service and leadership.

Shenk recently retired as a full-time professor at George Fox and lives with his wife Ina in McMinnville, Oregon, where they are active at First Mennonite Church.

Why international, experiential

Out of the Classroom,
Into the world

Why international, experiential learning is so pedagogically powerful

BY KEITH GRABER MILLER

In his opening remarks at a service-learning conference a quarter century ago, Goshen College president emeritus J. Lawrence Burkholder '39 said he claimed only one credential for speaking at the event: He was a “born again” believer in international education.

As one who has co-led nine Study-Service Term (SST) units — in Dominican Republic, Costa Rica, Cuba, China and Cambodia — I write today as one similarly reborn. And in the spirit of some Dominican evangelicals, I'll testify to a series of rebirths during my years of teaching in a small, Mennonite, liberal arts college — recommitments to graceful living as well as to international education, and to service or experiential learning. God knows, I'm a believer.

In my undergraduate years at a college with no international educational program, I intuitively recognized the need for and value of cross-culture education and experiential learning. In my sophomore year, a friend and I spent six weeks of the Christmas break and January interterm backpacking and train-hopping our way through Western Europe, communicating in our halting French and German and smiling and gesturing profusely when we traversed Italy and Spain. Revelatory experiences came each day, and I reflected on those experiences in a journal that expanded to four volumes by the end of the six weeks.

Many years later, I want to highlight why experiential or service learning — in international settings as well as on our campuses — is essential, and why it may be effective.

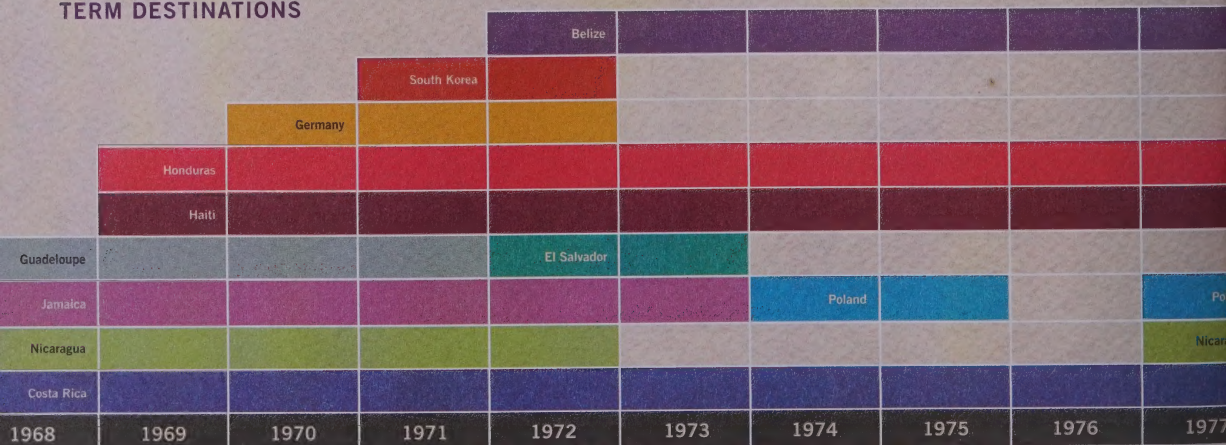

1. Experiential learning is one of our earliest modes of development.

Our initial insights come not in reading or rote memorization or academic discourse. As infants we gradually discover parts of our body we never knew existed, one day finding our feet and then inserting them into our mouths to see what form and texture and taste they have. We learn that dropping liquids on the floor results in a flurry of activity, recognizing the realities of cause and effect. During our earliest months of life, experiential learning is woven into our being. It is how we first come to know ourselves and our worlds, and the value of such learning sticks with us.

2. Experiential learning takes us into the realm of the unfamiliar.

With infants, everything is new. With college-age students in international education programs, or their crustier faculty leaders, much is new. And for most of us, newness engages us, draws us out, stimulates us, makes us open and vulnerable, teachable.

50 YEARS OF STUDY-SERVICE TERM DESTINATIONS

For our SSTers in the Dominican Republic (D.R.), the realm of the unfamiliar came perhaps even more so in Haiti than in our primary host country. Our students came to the D.R. aware of what the country and its people would be like because of their orientation at GC and the SST culture on campus. But they were unprepared for our four-day excursion to Haiti, where we switched to a language none of us knew, and where we heard about development from Haitians and others whose perspectives we had never encountered before, and where we lived with former street boys who had undergone religious and quality of life changes about which we had been clueless.

3. Experiential learning requires us to think carefully and critically about and from other perspectives.

Faculty members who have led international education programs usually have multiple, glorious stories of “aha” moments or revelatory breakthroughs in critical thinking. I want to mention a more mundane one, though its impact was far-reaching. In the D.R., most of the students’ transportation takes place in carros publicos, usually beaten up, taped together (literally), decade-old Toyotas which scuttle down Santo Domingo’s primary streets, picking up anyone wagging the Dominican finger. In these ancient and tiny wrecks, it’s expected that two people sit in the one front bucket seat and that four people crowd into the back.

Several weeks into the summer term, some of our students were remarking about the insanity of a common occurrence. They briefly would be alone in a publico with the driver, sitting comfortably in the front bucket seat, when another passenger-to-be would finger the car to a halt. Then, even though the backseat was empty, the new rider would open the front door and pile, nearly onto the lap, of our student. The assumption of some of our SSTers was that this was, at best, an attempt at undesired physical intimacy or, at worst, a sign of Dominican senselessness.

As we discussed this at "Casa Goshen," the weekly group-processing time in our home, we realized that because of traffic patterns and the dangers of exiting and entering cars, all passengers were required to exit publicos from the right doors rather than into the roadway.

That meant the person who sat on our students' lap would have inconvenienced the publico's future passengers had he entered the back seat of the car, where he would have been eventually pressed against the driver's side door. For him to exit the car, especially if he were going a short distance, all of the other passengers who by then would have filled the back seat would have needed to get out before he could exit. His act, then, in scrunching into the front seat, was sensitive, appropriate and eminently rational.

The student who brought the incident to the group was bowled over. What had been senselessness had been transformed through seeing from another unconsidered perspective, and the chastening that came through the revelation carried over into the remainder of her experience.

4. Experiential learning breathes life into our study, makes our learning both practical and real.

Even near our home campuses, in practicums and internships and student-teaching assignments, engaged experience helps students make practical applications of their earlier learning, and they return to the classroom sharper and more mature in their thinking, and more engaged in their study.

In the Dominican Republic, we altered the curriculum for our summer SSTers, partly by adding in a major block on women's issues, building on the powerful story of the Hermanas Mirabal, three sisters who were assassinated by the dictator Trujillo in 1960 for participating in a resistance movement.

In addition to our lectures on domestic violence, prostitution and women's roles in the culture, we read Julia Alvarez's historical novel In the Time of the Butterflies, which chronicles the lives and deaths of the Mirabal sisters. We also were able to arrange a meeting with Dede Mirabal, the surviving sister. Dede responded to our questions for 45 minutes, showed us through her house and gardens, and signed our novels. Students were deeply moved, and the history of the Mirabals as well as the Trujillo regime came alive for them in the person of Dede. Such experiences can't be replicated in the classroom.

5. There is theological warrant for international education and experiential learning.

Here I quote one who has reflected with depth on experiential learning, largely through the lens of Goshen's SST program. Former program director Wilbur Birky '63 once wrote a piece titled "SST: Vision, History and Ethos," in which he draws on the biblical metaphor of the incarnation.

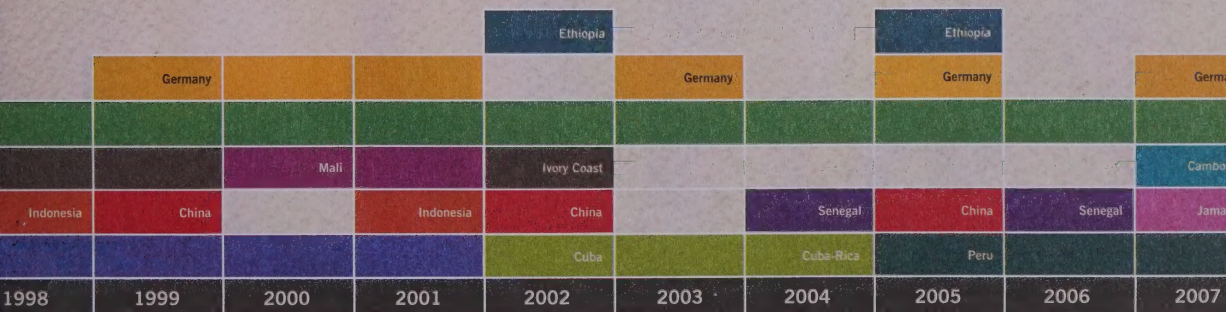

"Let us propose the Incarnation as an act of divine imagination rooted in a profound realization that even God could not know and understand the human condition completely without entering into it, to experience it in the body. That was a true cross-cultural experience. So a description of at least the early parts of Jesus' incarnation applies aptly to the SST"

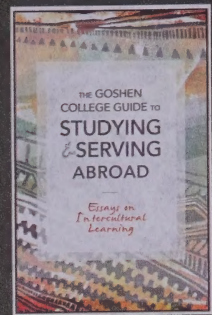

The leadership that launched and sustained SST

Over Homecoming Weekend, as the college celebrated the 50th anniversary of Study-Service Term, past international education directors gathered together under the Union Building's south portico where many of the 8,000-plus past participants have said farewell to family and friends, and were welcomed home from their travels to one of 24 different countries.

experience: it is to give up one's customary place of comfort, to become as a child to learn a new language and to eat in new ways, to be received into a new family, to attend the local house of worship, to question and be questioned, to experience frustration and success, and to learn to serve in the very thick of life.”

In the Christian tradition, the incarnation is understood to be a form of crossing over, an experience in humbling, and an identification with others. Such is the nature of much international education.

I'm a believer.

My hope is that I never forget how needful I am, how needful we all are, of passions and experiences outside the classroom — internships in schools if we teach education; time in churches or with social-service agencies if we teach Bible and religion; blocks of time in the business world if we teach in that department; the occasional international education experience to reinvigorate our sensibilities. As teachers, we need ongoing experiential learning if we are to have anything to teach. And with such learning, we also will be able to better value such a pedagogy.

Experiential learning in international settings — for teachers as well as students — renews, restores, matures, provokes, transforms and educates — toward excellence and toward wholeness. I'm a believer.

the love story of one gamelan's journey

Goshen College wants to say terima kasih.

This phrase, Indonesian for “thank you,” literally translates to “receive love.” President Rebecca Stoltzfus '83 shared this important phrase from her time living in Indonesia during a dedication ceremony on July 1 for a very special gift to the college: an Indonesian gamelan.

The gamelan — a massive, multi-piece set of percussive instruments — was donated by Duane Gingerich '69 in 2011. He passed away in 2016, but his dream was finally realized this summer when the Nyai Oyer Gamelan, translated to Sister Oyer Gamelan, arrived in the United States and was dedicated in honor of Professor Emerita of Music Mary Oyer '45.

Gingerich had a lot of love embodied in this gift: love for art, love for Dr. Oyer and love for Indonesia.

Terima kasih. Receive love.

Gingerich was a student of Oyer's during his time at GC and had taken a class, The Arts, with her. Even if it was the only B he ever got in his many years of education, the class significantly impacted him, and his one request was that the ensemble be named after Oyer.

4. The gamelan is a massive, multi-piece set of percussive instruments from Indonesia.

Gingerich's connection to Indonesia began shortly before graduating from Goshen College. He spent time in Indonesia under the Mennonite Central Committee PAX service program from 1965 to 1968, and then moved there in 1982. He spent the last 15 years of his 26-year legal career in Jakarta as an international partner with the global law firm Baker and Mackenzie.

"Duane loved Indonesia," said his wife Reti, whom he married in 1986. His love for the culture was shown through his collection of Indonesian antiques, including two gamelans.

The word "gamelan" comes from the Javanese word "gamel," meaning to strike or hammer. Gamelans typically feature a variety of instruments similar to xylophones, drums and gongs. Many of these pieces are very large; the biggest gongs can weigh up to 100 pounds on their own. In the case of GC's gamelan, there are two of each instrument, each with two different tuning systems. The rhythmic, Eastern-style music is very spiritual in Indonesian culture and often includes supplementary, symbolic dancers and vocalists.

After being refurbished in Indonesia, the instruments all were dismantled, labeled, wrapped and packed to be shipped to the United States. This process took months to complete.

Having an instrument of this cultural significance is invaluable for the college. It's priceless and one of only around 100 that exist in the United States.

"It needs to remain out and visible," Marcia Yost, director of the arts, engagement and outreach said. "It's a work of art."

The college intends to use the instrument for two purposes on campus. Goshen students will learn to think about how they read, study and honor music in their own cultures and others as well. The gamelan will also be used for outreach to other colleges and universities, elementary through high school students and visiting civic and cultural groups.

The gamelan finally getting to Goshen College means Gingerich finally gets to say terima kasih.

President Stoltzfus also shared the response: "terima kasih kembali."

"I return that love."

Back to Indonesia

Students last went to Indonesia for Study-Service Term in Spring 2001, but discontinued the destination following a travel warning by the U.S. government. With the warning long ago lifted, a unit is scheduled to go again in Spring 2019, led by retired faculty Ron '67 and Sally Jo Milne '67. Students will spend the first half of the semester in the city of Yogyakarta on the island of Java studying at Duca Wacana Christian University. Indonesia joins China, Peru, Senegal and Tanzania as the current location options for the college's study abroad program.

GC as a global citizen

THIS YEAR on the 50th anniversary of Study-Service Term (SST) and with a shift in my work responsibilities, I have been reminiscing on GC as part of a global community. I have had the privilege of leading SST in Cambodia and two of my children have had their own SST experiences, with one daughter — as I write this — in Peru studying Peruvian Sign Language and culture, all while experiencing the deep and challenging intercultural experience that SST continues to be.

With alumni living in more than 80 countries across the globe, the reach of this small institution is truly impressive. This is in large part because of the warm welcome we have afforded to generations of international students. This fall I have added the role of international student adviser to my work here. For me, this is a gift. From my very early childhood, I have been blessed with deep, intercultural experiences. So, this new role is one that provides me so much joy as I seek to play a part in providing these experiences for individual international students and the whole GC community with which they interact and enrich.

One of the pleasures of the role is serving as the sponsor for the International Student Club, one of the most active and fun clubs on campus. All students are welcome to join the club and many do. We routinely have 70 to 100 students at our events, which range from barbecues, movie and game nights, bowling, Thanksgiving dinner, study break pizza parties, trips to the dunes and Chicago and more. The largest event of the year for the club, though, is the annual International Student Coffeehouse. From its humble beginnings in Newcomer Center, it is now a dinner and program attended by hundreds from our community. It is a chance for the students to share foods and arts from their home cultures. I would encourage you to join us on March 23 for this annual event.

As I start this new role, I know I stand on the shoulders of those who came before me and have served the college through their support of international students. It is one important way that GC lives its core value of being a positive global citizen.

Goshen College Giving Clubs

The combined giving power of GC Giving Club members is truly phenomenal, whether they join the Builders at a minimum gift of $1 per day, or the President's Circle at $25,000 or more. Five giving clubs support the GC Fund, and together, the members of these clubs provided $1,256,611 in "unrestricted" giving for fiscal year 2017-18. We gratefully acknowledge the generosity of these friends and alumni whose gifts support every student and department on campus.

Ways you can help grow Goshen

Referrals are one of our top sources for students who end up enrolling. Refer students to us who have not heard of or considered Goshen College, but whom you think would value this learning experience and community. (goshen.edu/refer)

Organize a group of high school students in your area and bring them to campus for a visit. The Admissions Office can help with your planning and with travel reimbursement. (goshen.edu/visit)

Pray regularly for our admission counselors on the road, prospective students traveling for a visit and for those making decisions at the college.

Donate! With your generous contributions to the Goshen College Fund and Student Aid Fund we are able to make the "Distinctively Goshen" experience accessible for all students. (goshen.edu/give)

Towards a transformative future: How SST began

by JOE SPRINGER '80, Curator, Mennonite Historical Library

ON NOV. 1, 1965, Goshen College President Paul Mininger called to order the first meeting of the Committee on the Future of the College. Their tasks: clarify/evaluate present goals, then revise/restate goals to evaluate GC's program and construct a program that would meet those goals.

A week later, led by its executive secretary Henry Weaver, the committee began discussing not if, but how GC might internationalize its curriculum. Add courses? Broaden general education to cover non-Western studies? Recruit international faculty? Send students abroad? Also under discussion were moving to a year-round trimester academic calendar, tightening and reducing the number of majors, and identity questions (relationship to the church, liberal arts vs. professional school).

By Jan. 17, 1966, the committee approved the concept of an "international service term." The objectives were helping students "break out of the shell" of their own culture; "intensive relationships" with small, faculty-led student groups; responding to "necessity of and mood for an international emphasis." But questions remained: How would GC deal with costs, calendars, curriculum? As students caught wind of the possibilities, they wondered aloud if these plans were perhaps "overly ambitious."

The committee kept at it, and on Oct. 6, 1966, the full GC faculty approved a proposed "study-service term abroad."

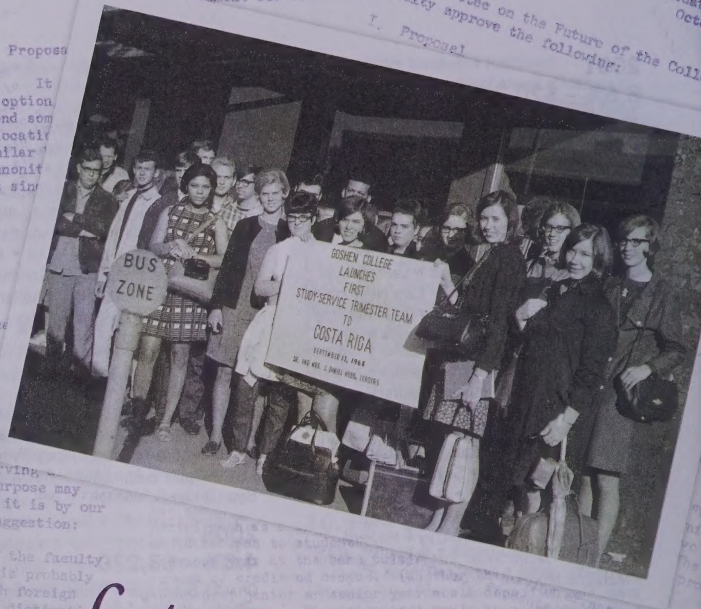

Various external and internal projects preceding the committee's launch had enabled a solid and rapid start to its work. Following the first faculty vote much discussion and planning remained.

Finally, on Sept. 12, 1968, the first three "official" Study-Service Trimester (SST) groups left northern Indiana for Costa Rica, Guadeloupe and Jamaica. And that was the beginning of what has become 50 years of transformative global citizenship.

Photo: The first group that went on Study-Service Term to Costa Rica in 1968 posed as they departed. Groups simultaneously went to Jamaica and Guadeloupe.

Be part of the change coming in 2019 to the Union

Have you heard about the Goshen College Commons Project coming to the Union Building in Summer 2019? This renovation will continue to revitalize this historic center of campus. It will offer vibrant, innovative and engaging space for welcoming newcomers and witnessing to the impact that the college has in the world.

This project will include:

- Adding a new campus entrance
- Relocating the Juanita Lark Welcome Center
- Installing the Hunsberger Haitian Art Collection
- Renovating the Leaf Raker Cafe

THE MAGAZINE OF GOSHEN COLLEGE

SPRING / SUMMER 2018

Beginnings

IT IS A PLEASURE and privilege to write to you as the president of our alma mater, in spring, when the maples become leafy once again. I have felt abundant joy as I have re-acquainted myself with the college, learning to know the students, faculty, staff and alumni, and seeing the many manifestations of your lives, leadership and service in the world.

Undoubtedly, these are turbulent times for higher education, Mennonite Church USA, our society and our planet. Goshen College is affected by all of these currents, creating tensions and openings. The challenge and opportunity of the moment were part of what drew me back to Goshen College at this time. I am honored and glad to return to Goshen College because I am optimistic about its future and want to be a part of creating it.

Since I began on November 1, we have already gotten started on a few new things. One is creating a Faculty Renewal Fund to offer seed grants to faculty teams or individuals to renew their scholarship and teaching. These funds, provided through gifts and in addition to our operating budget, recognize that our mission particularly depends on the quality and commitment of its teaching faculty.

We are also working to strengthen our campus community toward greater inclusivity and engagement, with a particular emphasis on student leadership. I have convened a Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Taskforce that is bringing together students, staff and faculty to take stock of our culture and actions, and to recommend what new resources and programs are needed. And fortuitously, a newly formed student club, called the Intercultural Coalition of Goshen College, is bringing together members of the Black Student Union, International Student Club and Latino Student Union under one umbrella. They are challenging and leading us to — in their words — “address ongoing student concerns pertaining to diversity and race on campus, and ways to create a community with more understanding and love for one another.”

As I envision the future we create together, I want Goshen College to continue to provide a “distinctively Goshen” liberal arts education, rooted in the way of Jesus. An education that liberates students to explore ideas, the world, relationships and their own souls; to express themselves through writing, discovery, action and the arts; and to compose a life in a beloved community doing meaningful and joyful work.

The hard work is coming more clearly into focus for me. And there is not a place that I would rather be right now than here, where the leafy maple grows.

FIND MENNO

Menno Simons was all for serving others and encouraging others to do as well. We heard from 59 of you who correctly found Menno in the Fall/Winter 2017 issue on page 15, looking over the shoulder of alumni award recipient Sheri (Greaser) Hartzler '73.

From the correct submissions, we chose five lucky winners at random to receive limited-edition Goshen College T-shirts:

1. Stan Brunk '61, Colorado Springs, Colorado
2. James Miller '66, Eugene, Oregon
3. Sylvia Miller '60 (staff 1981-2003), Goshen
4. Vivian Schmucker '80, Goshen
5. Marilyn Yoder '88, Akron, Pennsylvania

We love hearing from all of you as you find where Menno is hiding (he looks just like the photo at the top, just smaller). So, when you do, submit your entry to gcbulletin@goshen.edu by July 30, 2018, for a chance to win. Survey shows student satisfaction well above national average

Eight out of 10 Goshen College students are satisfied with their college experience and, overall, experienced higher levels of satisfaction with their college experience than the national average, according to the Student Satisfaction Inventory (SSI), a biennial national survey administered to college students at more than 300 four-year private schools. GC student satisfaction was significantly higher than the national group on 28 survey items.

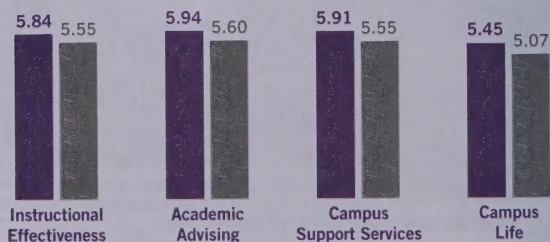

"Our students continue to be very happy with the experience and education they receive at Goshen College," said President Rebecca Stoltzfus '83. "The high satisfaction reflects the outstanding commitment of our faculty and staff to create a vibrant living and learning environment for our students. Survey data like these also help us identify areas for further growth and take steps to improve in those areas."

GC performs 'The Pirates of Penzance' for third time

In March, the Goshen College Theater Department presented Gilbert and Sullivan's comedic opera "The Pirates of Penzance" as part of its 2017-18 "Swords into Plowshares" theater season.

This musical, presented in its original form, was the first musical produced at GC since launching the new musical theater minor. "Pirates" was previously performed at Goshen College by faculty and staff in 1981 and by students in 1996.

'Deep Dive' documents GC's marine biology legacy in the Florida Keys

A year's worth of work for a team of more than 15 Goshen College students culminated in the premiere of their documentary, "Deep Dive: A Midwestern Legacy in the Florida Keys," on March 27 in front of more than 215 students, staff and community members.

The film chronicles the 50-plus year history of the college's marine biology program and the relationships built with the Layton, Florida community where the facility is housed.

Last May, six film students joined 12 biology students for a three-week course taught at the college's J. N. Roth Marine Biology Station. The course combined elements of communication and biology for an immersion in not only the community of Layton, but the differing disciplines as well.

The film recently won two Indiana Association of School Broadcasters (IASB) awards, as well as second place for best short film (fictional narrative or documentary) and another second place for best cinematography. IASB offers the top state awards for colleges with media and broadcasting programs.

College and church complete large solar project

In early April, Goshen College and College Mennonite Church (CMC) jointly installed a 924-panel solar array — the first solar panels on campus — which will make the Church-Chapel building fully powered by renewable energy.

The panels were installed by Toledo-based Solscient Energy on the roof of the college's Recreation-Fitness Center and provide 277 kilowatts of power, offsetting the Church-Chapel building's electric bill, with the costs expected to be fully recovered in about a decade.

David Lapp Jost '11, a member of CMC, got the project off the ground and spearheaded fundraising for the panels. He approached the college and church leadership about installing solar panels several years ago, but until recently the cost of solar panels and other budgetary and logistical concerns kept the project from moving forward.

"Environmental sustainability is a natural priority for both Goshen College, which does so much to teach thoughtful stewardship, and for College Mennonite Church, which seeks to be a blessing in its community and honor our creator God in word and deed," said Lapp Jost. "In addition to saving both institutions tens of thousands of dollars annually for years to come, this project is a testament to deep shared values."

The project is owned by Amity Corporation, an entity created by the college and church in 1989 in order to equitably make decisions about the jointly-owned building's use, including improvements and maintenance. Both CMC and GC share all Amity costs and benefits fifty-fifty.

The project contributes to the town of Goshen having more solar watts per capita than cities like Sacramento, Los Angeles, Salt Lake City, San Antonio, Denver or San Francisco.

Center for Sustainable Climate Solutions takes shape

A series of new programs is taking shape for the Center for Sustainable Climate Solutions (CSCS), a collaborative undertaking between Goshen College, Eastern Mennonite University and Mennonite Central Committee. Designed to mitigate climate change through the advancement of thinking and action in the Anabaptist faith community, the CSCS was established through a generous gift from Ray Martin '66, a former international development and world health worker whose dream for an Anabaptist-centered and community-focused climate change solution generator has pushed the vision of the center forward.

The center hosted its first board of reference meeting in March 2018 at Eastern Mennonite University, and a May 2017 consultation at Goshen drew 25 representatives from Mennonite organizations to set the mission and objectives for the center.

The center has rolled out a slate of programs focused on student leadership, pastoral and congregational leadership, and support for research into best practices and innovative solutions for climate change adaptation and mitigation efforts.

In February, CSCS hired Doug Kaufman '89 as its director of pastoral ecology, a first step in working with congregations and equipping pastors.

Faculty members recognized for milestones

Five professors were recognized this spring for milestone achievements, including promotions and doctoral degree completions. They include (left to right):

Suzanne Ehst, associate professor of education and director of secondary education, earned a Ph.D. in English education from Western Michigan University.

Colleen Geier, program director and associate professor of American Sign Language, earned a Ph.D. in education, with concentration in adult education from Walden University.

Scott Hochstetler '97, professor of music, was promoted to full professor.

David Lind '97, professor of sociology, was promoted to full professor.

Regina Shands Stoltzfus '84, associate professor of peace, justice and conflict studies, earned a Ph.D. in theology and ethics from Chicago Theological Seminary.

Senior Achieng Agutu wins annual peace oratorical contest

Achieng Agutu '18 (above), a public relations major and Spanish minor from Kisumu, Kenya, won the 2018 C. Henry Smith Peace Oratorical Contest and $500 in prize money on Feb. 13 with her speech "The Introduction: A Story of Inner Peace."

Agutu's speech focused on stereotypes and she shared a childhood story to explain how her father educated her about the stereotypes that she would face from the world. It will be entered in Mennonite Central Committee's bi-national intercollegiate oratorical contest.

Second place went to Mandira Panta '19, a sustainability studies major from Bhaktapur, Nepal, with her speech "Shades of Injustice." The three other contestants included Katie Yoder '19, a history major from Stryker, Ohio; Sara Azzuni '19, a nursing major from Jordan; and Deeksha Pagar '18, a physics and chemistry major from Maharashtra, India.

New undergraduate and graduate programs added

Beginning in Fall 2018, new sport management, marine biology and game development programs, as well as a post-master's degree Family Nurse Practitioner certificate will be offered at Goshen College.

A new sport management major will provide in-depth study in business, communication and international elements, as well as internships and hands-on opportunities.

The computer science department will begin offering a game development minor to give students a multi-disciplinary foundation in game design, drawing, animation and programming. Students will have the opportunity to create a game from scratch, testing both their coding and creative storytelling skills, whether it's a computer game or mobile app.

Beginning in 2020, environmental and marine science majors following a marine biology track will have the opportunity to take part in a new semester-long residential Marine Biology Semester at Goshen College's J. N. Roth Marine Biology Station in Layton, Florida. During the Marine Biology Semester, students will be immersed in research and will live and study in a culturally rich and diverse setting of the Florida Keys.

Goshen College will also offer a post-master's degree Family Nurse Practitioner Certificate program for individuals who have earned a Master of Science in Nursing (MSN) in another specialty area and seek further preparation to become a Family Nurse Practitioner (FNP). The program is conveniently designed with courses meeting once per week during late afternoon and evening hours, with students completing the certificate in one or two years, depending on their previous credits and schedule.

Afternoon Sabbatical series celebrates 40th anniversary and final season with high tea

The Goshen College Afternoon Sabbatical series celebrated its 40th and final season during a high tea event on Tuesday, April 10.

Current and past Afternoon Sabbatical Committee members shared memories (including Janette Yoder '66, below, top) and more as they looked back at the history of the Afternoon Sabbatical program, which was started in the 1977-78 college year.

The series was designed by a group of community women to offer community access to the knowledge and talent of Goshen College faculty. The series involved free lectures and concerts, along with an annual international luncheon, in which attendees could sample the food and take in a presentation about a specific country.

Students win state and national writing, journalism and broadcasting awards

National:

- 11 Intercollegiate Broadcasting Systems (IBS) awards, including The Globe (WGCS) as a finalist for "Best College Station in the Nation" (bottom photo)
- 4 Broadcast Education Association (BEA) awards, including one first place award

State:

- 34 Indiana Collegiate Press Association (ICPA) awards for "The Record" and "Red Cents", including 11 first place awards and "Newspaper of the Year" award (top photo)
- 15 Indiana Association of School Broadcasters (IASB) awards, including three first place awards (middle photo)

College wins Michiana clean air award

Goshen College received the 2018 Partners for Clean Air Award from the Michiana Area Council of Governments (MACOG) in April for being a community leader in energy conservation and land management. Glenn Gilbert '01 (above), director of facilities, was on hand to receive the award.

Professor John D. Roth receives Washington Theological Consortium Ecumenism award

John D. Roth '81 (above), professor of history at Goshen College, received the Annual Ecumenism Award at a service at the Virginia Theological Seminary on Feb. 13.

This award is in recognition of the work that led to the 2010 service of reconciliation between the Lutheran World Federation and the Mennonite World Conference, which produced the historic document "Healing of Memories: Reconciling in Christ."

"For me this is a symbolic marker on a journey that I, along with the larger Mennonite Church, have been on for nearly 20 years," Roth said.

SCOREBOARD FALL/WINTER 2017-18

MEN'S CROSS COUNTRY (4TH IN CL)

Sophomore Vincent Kibunja (Nakuru, Kenya) claimed all-conference honors with a 14th-place finish and four GC runners finished in the top 32 of the season-ending Crossroads League meet, powering the team to its eighth straight finish in the top half of the conference. Kibunja went on to finish 96th at the NAIA national meet with a time of 26:13, marking the third consecutive season that GC has had a runner in the top 100. The Maple Leafs finished in the top half of five of their six meets.

WOMEN'S CROSS COUNTRY (6TH IN CL)

Sophomore Chelsea Foster (McCordsville, Indiana) qualified for nationals after posting Goshen's best time in nine years at the Crossroads League meet on Nov. 4. She ran 3.11 miles in 19:04.4, taking fifth in the league to earn all-conference status and her third personal-best time of the season. GC's eight-runner team combined for 16 personal bests, with 10 coming in the last month of the season, and put four runners under the 21-minute mark at the conference meet. Foster went on to post a career-best 19:00.0 and finish 93rd at the national meet; the 19-minute mark has been eclipsed by only three runners in school history. She was the first Goshen woman to reach nationals since 2008.

MEN'S TENNIS (8-7, 5-4 CL)

In the second year of Evan Atkinson's tenure as director of tennis, Goshen bounced back above .500 and reached the Crossroads League tournament semifinals for the first time in four seasons after a fifth-place finish. Sophomore Juan Miguel Ciudad (Spain) earned all-conference recognition after going 8-1 in singles play and 5-4 in doubles action during the Crossroads League season.

WOMEN'S TENNIS (0-10, 0-9 CL)

First-year Kyra Krall (Carmel, Indiana) led the Maple Leafs in victories as the Maple Leafs posted twice as many individual wins as they did in the 2016 season.

MEN'S SOCCER (12-6-2, 4-3-2 CL)

Goshen's bid to host its first post-season game since 2009 lasted until the final night of the regular season before the Maple Leafs upset Indiana Wesleyan University to reach the semifinals of the Crossroads League tournament. Stuart

Aeschliman (Salem, Oregon) led the team with 12 goals, the most ever by a Maple Leaf first-year, and earned first-team all-conference honors, while junior Ollie Smith (York, England) paced the team with eight assists and made the second team. Junior goalkeeper Johan Escalante (Kissimmee, Florida) posted a 1.08 goals-against average, good for the top 40 in the nation, as the team recorded eight shutouts. Center back Tevin Gilkes (Arouca, Trinidad and Tobago) also got a first-team nod from the league and Escalante was the second-team netminder.

Non-conference action was highlighted by a 7-2 record that saw the team go 5-0 at the John Ingold Athletic Complex, marking the first time in this century that the Leafs were unbeaten at home in non-league play. Goshen's defense posted 605 consecutive shutout minutes at home, the longest scoreless streak in school history.

WOMEN'S SOCCER (3-12-2, 0-8-1 CL)

Freshman goalkeeper Katie Baer (Villa Ridge, Missouri) finished 19th in the NAIA in saves per game with 8.06 and earned all-conference honorable mention after stopping 88 shots in the nine-game Crossroads League slate. Junior Carolina Villalobos Palacios (San Rafael, Costa Rica) joined her on the honorable-mention team.

WOMEN'S VOLLEYBALL (12-19, 4-14 CL)

Sophomore middle hitter Darienne Maust (Bristol, Indiana) and senior outside hitter Christy Swartzendruber (Shickley, Nebraska) each earned second-team all-conference nods after a 12-win campaign. Maust set a program record with 0.96 blocks per set and led the team with 2.60 kills per set. Swartzendruber, who hit .189, graduates with the second-best efficiency in program history in both serving (.971) and receiving (.956). Sophomore middle hitter Lindsay McQuinn (Lake Worth, Florida), sophomore setter Ally Roehr (Allendale, Michigan) and junior defensive specialist MacKinnon Tracy (Mill Creek, Indiana) all received all-conference honorable mention.

MEN'S BASKETBALL (11-19, 4-14 CL)

In the first year under head coach Jon Tropf, Goshen knocked off 16th-ranked Bethel as part of a season-opening six-game home-court winning streak. By the end of the year, the 2017-18 Leafs had become the first team to graduate four 1,000-point scorers in the same season.

Senior shooting guard Billy Geschke (Medina, Ohio) led the team with 19.3 points per game and graduated with 1,472 points, the ninth-most in program history. Senior point guard Devin Heath-Granger (Indianapolis) finished with 196 assists on the season and 581 for his career, both records, along with 64 season steals and 1,061 career points. Senior Christian Grider (Huntsville, Ohio) graduated with 1,266 career points and racked up the 10th-best career free-throw percentage in NAIA Division II history. Senior Conner Funkhouser (Avon, Indiana) finished with 1,086 points. Geschke was a third-team all-conference pick while Grider was an honorable-mention selection.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL (1-29, 0-18 CL)

Goshen started young, with seven frosh and three seniors on the roster, and its experience took a hit when senior Caityn O'Neal (Russiaville, Indiana) went down with an injury in the first quarter of the season opener. Her twin sister Carley O'Neal (Russiaville, Indiana) led the team in scoring with 11.1 points per game. Carley O'Neal was GC's lone all-conference pick, garnering honorable mention.

CREW TO LEAD WOMEN'S SOCCER

Justin Crew (above) was named the 10th women's soccer coach in GC history on April 16. The Olivet Nazarene University (ONU) graduate comes to Goshen from Ancilla College in Donaldson, Indiana, where he led the Chargers' women's soccer program since its 2015 inception. He also spent five years as head men's soccer coach at ONU, reaching an NAIA national tournament, and has worked at the NCAA Division I level as an assistant coach at the University of South Carolina Upstate.

GC NAMED CHAMPIONS OF CHARACTER FIVE- STAR SCHOOL

The NAIA named Goshen a Champions of Character Five-Star institution for 2016-17, marking the 16th straight season GC has received that recognition.

The award is based on five categories of the NAIA's Champions of Character program: character training, conduct in competition, character recognition, academic focus and character promotion. Goshen is one of just 17 schools that has been a Champions of Character institution every year since the award began in 2002.

NAIA RECOGNIZES 25 SCHOLAR-ATHLETES

Twenty-five GC student-athletes were recognized as Daktronics-NAIA Scholar-Athletes in the fall and winter seasons. Award recipients must have a GPA of 3.5 or better and be at least a junior academically.

The list includes five cross-country runners, 11 soccer players, five women's volleyball players and four basketball players. Goshen's nine-man men's soccer contingent was tied for the largest in the NAIA.

Goshen has accumulated 184 scholar-athlete awards over the last four-plus seasons. Scholar-athletes in tennis, baseball, softball and track and field will be announced later in May.

AESCHLIMAN TABBED ACADEMIC ALL- AMERICA

Spencer Aeschliman (Salem, Oregon), a junior defender on the GC men's soccer team, was picked to the College Division Academic All-America first team by the College Sports Information Directors of America.

Aeschliman has started 50 of the Maple Leafs' 56 games in the last three seasons. From 2015 to 2017, the Maple Leafs have improved their winning percentage in each season while cutting the number of goals conceded almost in half. This year's defense set a modern-era record (since 1994) with eight regular-season shutouts.

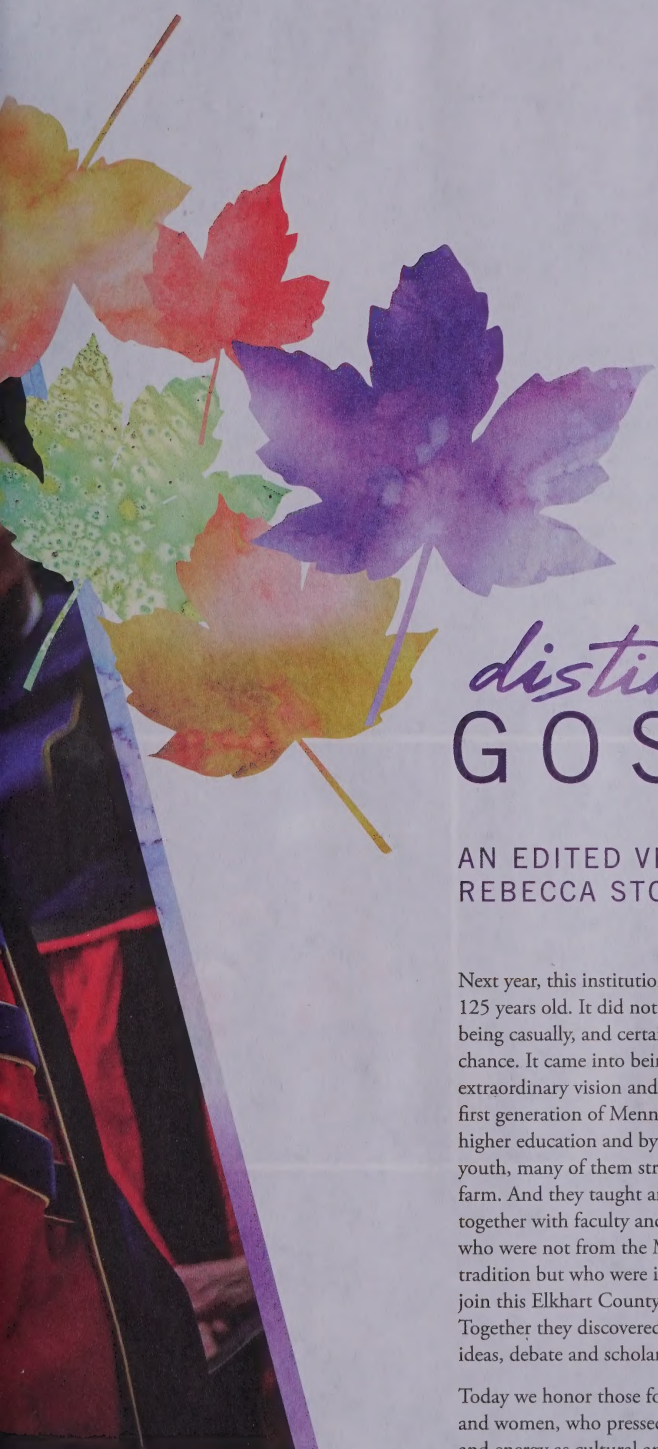

In the classroom, the physics major sports a 3.99 grade-point average through four semesters, which was the fifth-best mark among the College Division first-teamers. He spent the summer of 2017 on campus studying Elkhart County's air quality through the college's Maple Scholars program.

Aeschliman is the first Maple Leaf in any sport to make an Academic All-America team since Erin Helmuth '13 (women's track and cross country) in 2013. The last GC men's soccer players to get the first-team nod were Daniel Martin '13 and Greg Thiessen '11, both in 2011. His parents are Jeff '87 and Margaret (Fisher) Aeschliman '87.

distinctively GOSHEN

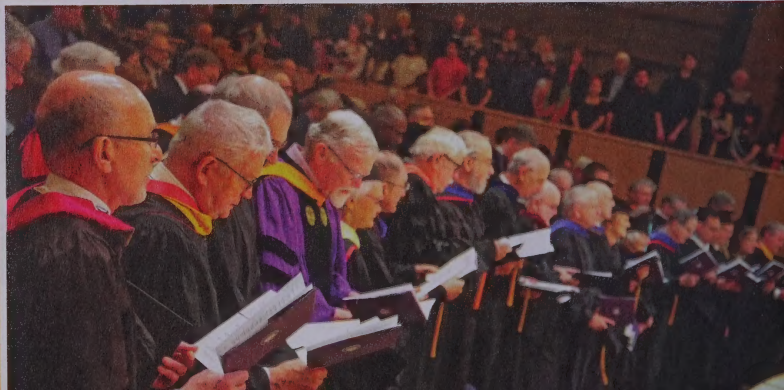

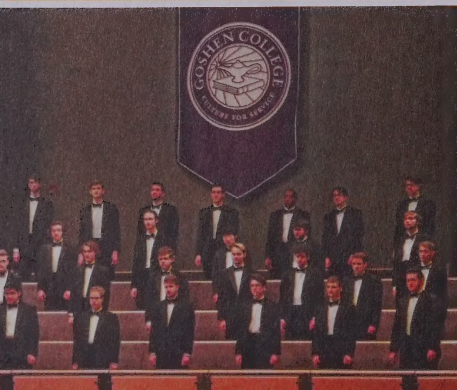

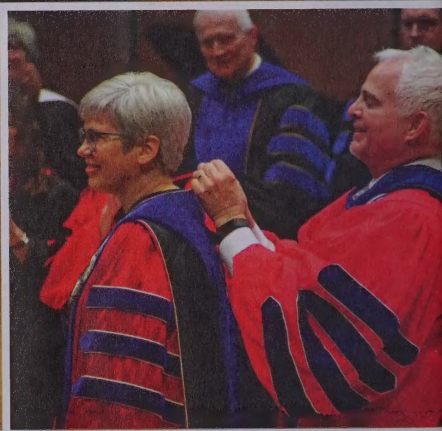

AN EDITED VERSION OF PRESIDENT REBECCA STOLTZFUS' INAUGURAL ADDRESS

Next year, this institution will be 125 years old. It did not come into being casually, and certainly not by chance. It came into being through the extraordinary vision and energy of the first generation of Mennonites to attain higher education and by Mennonite youth, many of them straight off the farm. And they taught and learned together with faculty and local students who were not from the Mennonite tradition but who were inspired to join this Elkhart County experiment. Together they discovered the thrill of ideas, debate and scholarship.

Today we honor those founding men and women, who pressed their vision and energy as cultural and academic entrepreneurs — pressing sometimes within and sometimes against the social boundaries of the Mennonite church as it moved from the 19th into the 20th century.

Today, we face an historic degree of tension and social pressure in higher education, reflected in a tangled debate about the worth of a college degree, the appropriate role of debt in obtaining that degree and concerns that college degree attainment in the United States is stagnant overall and inequitable by race and income level. This, in the face of research showing that a college degree is also strongly and positively associated with people's lifetime earnings and sense of thriving and well-being.

If we at Goshen are to navigate and illuminate a way through this turbulence, our particular light must shine even more brightly. If we are to persevere and indeed flourish for another 125 years, we must be clear and confident about what we offer the world.

Such an education, I propose, will have certain distinctive and defining qualities. These qualities are not new to us, but are re-affirmations of who we have been. I offer you four affirmations, which I believe are distinctively Goshen, and which yet need to be renewed for this new time.

I affirm that a Goshen education will continue to express and to integrate the transcendent values of beauty, truth and goodness.

We offer an education that liberates through engaging the whole person; it awakens and enlarges the capabilities of our students through the integration of the arts, the sciences, the humanities and the application of knowledge to do good.

These days, liberal arts education is being severely questioned. The 11th president of Goshen College, J. Lawrence Burkholder, wrote in 1983 that our commitment to integrative learning is in fact a part of our faithful call not to conform to the pressures of the world. It is part of our theology of education. He wrote:

"I would suggest that a worthy expression of non-conformity these days would be to resist the inclination . . . to be satisfied with fragments. Rather, the challenge is to think systematically and comprehensively. We must have the courage of rational association and creative synthesis. This means making core curricula as attractive as possible and thinking as broadly and as synthetically as we can. In a post-modern age, to build rational structures by tying together as much of what is good, true and beautiful as possible is to be non-conformed at its deepest level."

Thirty-five years later, I can say with confidence that the Goshen Core curriculum is outstanding in its integrative nature. No curriculum is perfect or immutable; but what this faculty has made is exceptionally creative, interdisciplinary and integrative.

My second affirmation is that a Goshen education will be one in which the faculty are outstanding scholars engaged in the pursuit of truth.

They are scholars in their disciplines and they are scholars of teaching and learning. I am here, in part, because of my deep respect for this faculty, and because I am determined to support them.

Teaching is a vocation that is terribly demanding — and often delightful. This creative delight is possible when, in the words of Paulo Freire:

"The teacher is no longer merely the one-who-teaches, but one who is taught in dialogue with the students, who in turn — while being taught — also teaches. They become jointly responsible for a process in which all grow."

SONG OF THE MAPLES

Our seeds have wings the wind propels. See how each leaf unfolds, its map of roads radiating outward. We stretch toward light yet trust the dark from which we sprout, the rich earth we clutch and query. What we reach for feeds us, becomes love conveyed in concentric circles swelling from the heartwood. Music flows through the flutes of our veins. Give us this day a cote of doves, a parliament of owls and for a crown, a thousand green prayer flags shimmering in the rain, burning red or gold as we bow.

And thus our work happens in a truth-seeking community. At its best, our truth-seeking community includes many diversities of experience, intelligence, identity and academic discipline, and advances our knowledge through creative conflict, not competition. When our teaching is relevant to our lives and our students' lives, when it involves controversial ideas or challenging methods, conflict arises.

Let us embrace relevance, controversy and challenge! Let us practice how to listen deeply, to be curious about our differences and to create a conversational space when it is uncomfortable — even distressing. Let us manifest our respect for the intrinsic worth of every member of our campus community, and also our freedom to ask challenging questions and speak opposing views.

Third, I affirm that a Goshen education will continue to be experiential and transformative to an unusual and adventuresome degree.

Our education combines acquired knowledge and direct experience. Study leads to experience and experience leads to study. Whether in a classroom or community or lab or oratory or stage, experiential learning challenges you to "try this!"

Goshen College students "try this" when restoring prairies on our campus and measuring the return of species of plants and pollinators. When learning not only French or Spanish, but also Wolof or Quechua as they build relationships with host families in Senegal and Peru. When learning as students within a local prison classroom as 'outsiders,' alongside the 'insider' incarcerated students. When learning to see how racism hangs on, within our society, and yes, within our campus, and when practicing skills to dismantle this and other forms of oppression.

Throughout our history, Goshen scholars have written a great deal about transformative education — which I stand behind. I also want to hold this over-used term to its true and high standard. It does not come cheaply.

Education always involves growth and change. It invites and sometimes forces the learner to go to a new place because the old place is not working anymore.

Goshen challenges learners to let many "prior things" fall apart — received worldviews or biases or privilege that stand in the way of our becoming the people we long to be, and to bring about the world we want to live in.

Looking back on my own experience at Goshen I can see how my own transformations that happened here have affected my life and my career. On my Study-Service Term in Haiti, I learned that living simply and vulnerably as a cultural outsider brought about moments of deep connection and happiness. My prior idea that wealth and power were the keys to joy and beauty fell apart. As a woman, my experiences and relationships here taught me that being female did not make me less scientific or less able to be a leader. My prior ideas about my own capabilities fell apart.

These "prior things" did not go down without a struggle. Transformation is not tidy. The process of old ideas falling apart is disruptive and chaotic. It usually includes a disconcerting reorientation. This is where friends, mentors, teachers and one's own intelligent, shining soul become essential ingredients.

Finally, I affirm that a Goshen education is rooted and established in love — or in the words of our motto, in “Culture for Service.”

I affirm that we are rooted in an educated conscious love, formed and transformed by the way of Jesus. A love that gives us courage to be vulnerable and to be fierce when called upon to act for goodness.

This taproot of love leads us to make particular commitments in this time and place:

- At a time in our nation when social inequalities are increasing, we will strive to craft policies and choose actions that expand social opportunity and increase equity.
- At a time when the rhetoric of higher education pits job preparation against holistic human development, our education will be holistic and prepare our graduates for great careers.
- At a time when the arts and humanities are viewed as non-profitable, we will preserve them, because they enable us to make a world that is worth living in.

- At a time when we are overwhelmed by disconnected information, we will host “the eternal conversation about things that matter.”

But our work is never complete. As I look ahead, I want not only to build on our current distinctions, but to imagine a vibrant future as well.

I imagine a future where we openly engage with and invest in this Maple City of Goshen, this Elkhart County and this region of Michiana — a future in which we see our commitment to local place and land and people as a part of our distinctive strength, a wellspring of learning and relevance.

I imagine us growing in our knowledge and relationship to the Potawatomi and Miami people who originally inhabited the lands of Goshen College.

I imagine our campus culture being transformed by the full participation of the increasingly diverse student body who are choosing a Goshen College education. I imagine a Goshen College transformed by that new reality; willing to let “prior things fall apart” when our transformation requires it. And to create new things together.

Most of all, I imagine the joy of working with this community to create a shared vision and new aspirations as we continue to offer a distinctive and excellent Goshen College experience for life, leadership and service.

May we be strengthened in our inner beings with power through the Spirit, and may Christ dwell in our hearts through faith as we go forward, rooted and grounded in love.

LETTERS TO THE
CORNER OFFICE:

Two generations at the helm

EDITOR'S NOTE: In 1984, just months after she had graduated with a degree in chemistry from Goshen College, Rebecca Stoltzfus' father Vic Stoltzfus '56 was appointed as president of Goshen College. With encouraging words and remarkable insight, she wrote a heartfelt letter to him. Little did either of them know that nearly 35 years later, Rebecca would find herself in shoes similar to those of her father's, as she assumed the presidency of her alma mater. In the spring of 2017, when Vic learned that Becky would be appointed as the college's 18th president, he responded with a letter of his own. Here are those two letters, edited for clarity and length.

A letter to my dad before he becomes president...

Dear Dad,

I wanted to say a few words to you before you take the big step and become the pres.

I feel like a parent watching a child leave for college. I'm giving up an intimacy with you. We'll still have our special father-daughter time I'm sure, but they'll be fewer and farther between. You're no longer going to belong just to me — you'll belong to the faculty, the Board of Education and to the whole Mennonite Church.

I'm also afraid for you. I love you, even with all your foibles, but will others? I'm afraid of how bald you're going to be up there on top. I don't want people to dislike you, and presidents are highly unlikeable people.

And finally, nothing can make you not my dad, not even being the president. More important than the simple and eloquent spokesperson you will be, you are a man of choice words, who creates and forms his words to tickle the tongue and elate the ear. During your term as president you will have grandchildren. I don't want my children to have the Goshen College president for their grandpa, I want them to have my dad.

And dad, after you retire, I want you to find a patch of land where you can have a garden, some fruit trees and an Allis Chalmers Tractor. And I'll help you dig your potatoes.

Love,
Becky

Becky

5.20.2017

Dear Rebecca,

Thirty-four years ago this fall you wrote me one of the most thoughtful, tender, supportive, intimate letters that I have ever opened. I "accidentally" found it while I was looking for some old photos in files in my office. When I read it now, it brings me close to tears.

You had a remarkable ability at age 21 to see that becoming the president of Goshen College would mean exposure to critics. When I became president, I had quite a bit of dark hair. You anticipated my bald head!

Then you went on to express confidence in my ability to be a spokesperson for Goshen College. And you followed up with the clear declaration that the corner office would not mean that I would cease to be your father. You anticipated our seven grandchildren, but did not envision two of them in the future student body of GC.

I treasure every word, every sentence of your letter. And now it is my turn.

Yes, your mother and I are tempted to hurt even before you begin your presidency for the ways that a public life attracts critics, some of them unfair (even unfair critics can sometimes be valuable and unintended helpers). We know that the sheer amount of work is a challenge. Responding to multiple and competing constituencies is a strain on integrity. You won't go bald, but you may get very white.

You already have presidential manners. You recognize the gifts of others and genuinely appreciate what they have to offer. You don't need constant affirmation. You have kudos already in the bank from an outstanding career. You have faculty, administrative, research and church credentials, plus remarkable national and international experience. You respect research and know how to access best practices and learn from the best minds. You are at home with information technology.

Your husband, your two children, your parents and the larger Miller and Stoltzfus families will be cheering you on. Your Ithaca friends and colleagues will not forget you.

Don't be uncomfortable with some public acclaim. It can be useful. I don't worry about you finding all your headgear two sizes too small.

My 12 years in the corner office had more joy than pain, more fulfillment than disappointment. My values and the college values were mostly aligned, which released my energy and motivation.

I have experienced 19 years after a college presidency. They have been so fulfilling. And so it will be with you, our beloved daughter. Yes, we will respect your time and your priorities, but you will still be our daughter.

Love,

Dad (for Dad and Mom)

"My memories of Becky are from the point of view of a younger sister who looked up to her with a lot of awe and admiration. She skipped a grade, which meant she was five years ahead of me, but as annoying as I'm sure I was, she was always kind and patient with me, playing with me after school even when she was a cool high school student and I was still a sixth grader. I always felt there was nothing she couldn't do, and lucky for Goshen College, I still believe that to be true!"

► 2009

President Stoltzfus began nutrition research at Cornell University which aims to make food safer for mothers and children in low-income countries. The research, which she will continue, is funded by a grant from the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation and she is the principal investigator, though works with an international team of researchers. In March 2018, she traveled to the Nelson Mandela African Institute of Science and Technology in Arusha, Tanzania, along with Goshen College professors: Paul Meyer Reimer '84, professor of physics, and John Mischler, assistant professor in the sustainability and environmental education program.

► 2017

On Nov. 1, her first day of work, President Stoltzfus spent her morning delivering Rise 'n Roll donuts to people and offices across campus as way of introducing herself and getting to know the community and every corner of the college.

Brian Yoder Schlabach '07

"A test of her character happened when she learned that a high school teacher wanted to form a chapter of the National Rifle Association (NRA) at Eastern Mennonite High School. From what she knew of the NRA, she did not think it fit into the culture of her high school. She wrote an article in the school paper in opposition. The teacher met her in the hallway and strongly rebuked her. She heard him out, stood her ground and did not back down. It strengthened her to face opposition."

"My mom always takes a broad perspective of things. Growing up, in any given conversation, she would take the topic and then zoom out, and bring all these other insights into view. Which was sometimes annoying...like in seventh grade when I was trying to convince her to let me get a cell phone, and suddenly she's talking about globalism and Third World economies! But, she never let me think in an insular way."

— Lydia Miller '18, daughter

"The first time that I sat down with Becky, she expressed with unparalleled enthusiasm the learning that she believes takes place both inside and outside of the classroom. Immediately I understood that Becky is a person who believes in the whole student, and that is our challenge as educators to support students in integrating their various experiences."

Initiatives

"I have been fortunate to collaborate with Becky for many years in work that focused on helping others make a positive difference in the world. In every interaction — whether a class, a meeting, a retreat, a conference, a presentation, a panel, etc. — she stands out as the person in the room who asked the right questions at the right moment that made everyone think more deeply about their purpose, that opened up spaces for others to contribute in more meaningful ways and that always led to a better process and outcome. And, following her questions, she always listens intently to the response, looking for ways to bring that perspective into whatever initiative we were working on. In other words, she 'walked the talk' and modeled how one builds deep, genuine, relational trust — something the world needs more than anything now."

Restoring a piece of GC history and tradition

SINCE 1910, most graduates from Goshen College have signed a heavy leather-bound graduation registry. This tradition continues today as the book and a lamp are annually moved to the Roman Gingerich Recreation-Fitness Center for commencement. After crossing the stage and receiving their diplomas, graduates sign the registry as part of the ceremony. In the past few years though, it became clear that the book would need to be restored if we wanted to continue this tradition.

Joe Springer '80, director of the Mennonite Historical Library, helped us find a book restorer who could get the book ready for the next century of graduates. After several months away, the book is now back on campus with a new leather cover that very closely matches the original, pages that were stabilized so that the ink will not fade and a new binding. New pages were also added so that we can use it for many more years. See the before and after pictures at right.

With the restorer in place, the next question was how to pay for the process. I contacted all of the former directors of alumni relations who are living to see if this is a project that would resonate with them. In short order, former directors Lois Bare '79, Susan Edwards '91, Kelli King '77, Laurie Nafziger '78 and Alice Roth '57 agreed to join me in funding this project in full. We give thanks for their continuing commitment to the college and this tradition.

As I noted earlier, "most" graduates signed the registry. There was a break in its use from 1980 to 1994 and members of those classes didn't have a chance to sign it. When Lois Bare revived the tradition in 1995, she wisely left some pages blank so that those class members could sign it at a later date. We now plan to take the registry to class reunions at Homecoming for signatures. In the meantime, if you are on campus and you never signed the book, you are most welcome to stop by the alumni office and sign it. If you want to see your signature, or maybe your parent's or grandparent's signature, you are also welcome to stop by the office. It really is a wonderful piece of Goshen College history and tradition, restored to perfection.

The end of the fiscal year is approaching!

As you think about your giving plans, please consider a gift to the GC Fund before June 30. Gifts to the GC Fund are powerful because they go to work immediately, underwriting the very core of the student experience. Your gift by June 30 helps continue Goshen's tradition of scholastic excellence, academic innovation and spiritual development. You can give online at goshen.edu/give, or by mail: Development Office, 1700 S. Main St., Goshen, IN 46526.

Annual report available online

Goshen College's 2016-17 annual report is available for viewing online at goshen.edu/give under "News & Reports." It is one opportunity to reflect back on the past year and say a big "thank you" to each of the individuals, churches and organizations that supported the college's students and mission this past fiscal year. Every donation matters.

Prepare for your class reunion on Facebook

In preparation for Homecoming Weekend and to help classmates reconnect, we have created a Facebook group for each graduating class since 1950. In addition to catching up and conversation, you can post photos, add files, create events or conduct a poll question just for members of the group. Please invite your classmates to join if they aren't already. You can find links at goshen.edu/alumni under "Stay Connected."

Thank you Jim Caskey and welcome back Kent Stucky!

After 20 years of loyal service in the college's development office, vice president for institutional advancement Jim Caskey '84 decided to join the Goshen Health leadership team as vice president of Goshen Health Foundation and capital campaign director. His last day at the college was March 31. Kent Stucky '74 returned to campus in a part-time role to serve as interim special assistant to the president for advancement. He had previously served Goshen College for nine years (1992-2001), including as vice president for advancement, and since has been at Loyola University Chicago, Trine University and the University of Texas at Tyler. Thank you Jim and welcome back Kent!

At 104, Rose Hutchinson '35 is GC's oldest living alumnus

Rose (Adams) Hutchinson '35 (above) enrolled at Goshen College 88 years ago. Now, at age 104, she lives in Beaverton, Oregon, and she is Goshen's oldest living alumnus.

In February, Goshen College President Becky Stoltzfus was able to visit with her during the Men's Chorus spring break tour in Oregon.

Hutchinson was born on June 24, 1913, in Goshen, raised Methodist but later became a Catholic. Her father owned the Adams Store in downtown Goshen, which sold jewelry, men's clothes, shoes and other accessories, and is now home to the Goshen Historical Museum.

She remembers playing tennis with Laverne Yoder, the daughter of then-president Sanford C. Yoder, on the Goshen tennis courts, where she met her future husband, Tom. After the couple were married, they moved to Indianapolis, and then later moved to New York City. They were married for 50 years until Tom's death in 1993.

Hutchinson was a math major at Goshen but admitted she'd have rather studied theology or creative writing. She recently took up watercolor painting.

Joel Kauffmann '79 honored at Museum of the Bible opening

Family and friends of Joel Kauffmann '79 (above) gathered to celebrate and honor his work ahead of the opening of the Museum of the Bible in Washington, D.C. in November. At the event, museum staff unveiled a plaque (above) thanking Kauffmann for the "creative genius he brought to the Museum of the Bible," and a new scholarship was launched in his name.

A screenwriter and creator of the Pontius Puddle cartoon, published in more than 200 publications, Kauffmann was a creative consultant on museum design before his sudden death on May 8, 2015.

The museum, a 430,000-square-foot look at the Bible's history, stories and impact, opened to the public on Nov. 11. For Kauffmann, the project represented the convergence of his personal passion for the Bible and his experience with building exhibits, perhaps most prominently at Nazareth Village, an open-air, interactive museum in Israel that replicates village life in the time of Jesus.

Donations are currently being accepted to support the scholarship fund, which will be administered by Goshen College. Planners hope to raise $100,000 for the fund.

Ann Vendrely '85 named college's new academic dean

Dr. Ann (Gusler) Vendrely '85 (above) has been named as Goshen's new vice president for academic affairs and academic dean. Bringing more than 20 years of experience in higher education as a professor, researcher and administrator, Vendrely will direct the college's academic program, provide leadership to the teaching faculty and lead the academic strategic planning.

For the past four years Vendrely has been the associate provost and associate vice president for academic affairs at Governors State University in University Park, Illinois, which has included launching a new general education program and overseeing a successful accreditation process.

As a researcher, she has participated in receiving grants totaling more than $2 million, and her scholarship has focused on a variety of topics in physical therapy, as well as research on best practices for undergraduate education. She is also a professor of physical therapy at the university and previously served as the program coordinator for the school's transitional doctor of physical therapy degree program. In her role as a professor, Vendrely received the institution's faculty excellence award three times.

"I am so energized by the possibilities and opportunities as I look forward to helping move the new vision and growth potential of Goshen College forward," she said.

Joseph J. Berry '94 honored with Penn State's Outstanding Science Alumni Award

Joseph Berry '94 (above) was honored with Penn State's Outstanding Science Alumni Award in October 2017 for his research contributions and his commitment to training undergraduate researchers. Berry's research on semiconductors and photovoltaics has resulted in advances in solar power technology and optoelectronics devices — electronic devices that use or are affected by light.

Berry is a senior research scientist at the National Renewable Energy Lab (NREL) in Golden, Colorado, and has contributed to the Department of Energy's Condensed Matter Physics Program since 2015. He is also a lecturer in the Department of Physics and an affiliate of the Renewable and Sustainable Energy Institute at the University of Colorado at Boulder.

Berry's graduate research was foundational to semiconductor spintronics — a field of electronics in which the spin of electrons is manipulated — and was cited by the Nobel Prize Committee in the scientific background for the 2007 Nobel Prize in physics. He later developed high-precision spectroscopic imaging techniques to understand quantum effects in nanostructured semiconductors. Berry is currently studying the basic physics and functional device properties of halide perovskite solar cell materials and oxide semiconductor systems.

Why Gaurav Khandelwal '01 decided to create an app following Hurricane Harvey

After Hurricane Harvey, Gaurav Khandelwal '01 and his wife, Seema (above, with Houston Mayor Sylvester Turner in the middle), opened their Houston home to several nurses who traveled there to help. But the nurses were turned away at the volunteer sites, due to an overabundance of volunteers.

Khandelwal, the CEO of Houston-based technology company ChaiOne, figured there had to be a better way to connect resources with people in need.

About 500 hours of work later, along with the help of about a half dozen employees, ChaiOne's team rolled out the app Disaster Connect, which employs maps and balloons pinpointing the locations of needs following a disaster. Khandelwal worked with the city and other charitable organizations to promote it.

The app can be used globally to address disaster recovery needs around the world, Khandelwal said. It's available to download for free on iOS and Android devices.

Rachel Smith '01 reaches 1M YouTube subscribers

While living in Germany after college, Rachel Smith '01 (above left) discovered a knack for helping non-English speakers pronounce English words. Having studied computer science, math and music, and with experience as an ESL teacher and opera singer, she decided to put her skills to work and make an English pronunciation video to post to a new website called YouTube.

"I really didn't have a big plan going in. I started posting some basic videos and it grew from there," she told Entrepreneur magazine. "The idea and the concept very much grew over time."

A decade later, Smith's YouTube channel, Rachel's English, has more than 1.3 million subscribers, helping people from all over the world learn English. Her nearly 500 videos have been viewed more than 73 million times. Sometimes her husband, David Roth '98 (above right), or her college friends even make appearances in the videos.

In addition to her videos, Smith, who lives in Philadelphia, also runs an online subscription-only academy for intermediate to advanced English learners who want to boost their conversation skills.

After reaching 1 million subscribers, YouTube threw her a party and awarded her a Gold Play Button at their recording studios in Manhattan in December, giving her a chance to celebrate with her friends, family and fans from around the world.

Mark Eash Hershberger '10 creates connections with new "Mennonite Game" card game

While many Mennonites have played the "Mennonite game" – the Anabaptist version of six degrees of separation – everyone now has the chance to play Mark Eash Hershberger's '10 (above) table top version.

Hershberger created "The Mennonite Game" card game where players strategically "discover that they are connected in various ways" through drawing cards and using their various ties and experiences, such as realizing that someone is your "brother's roommate's sister's ex-boyfriend's high school teacher," according to a Hershberger.

Hershberger originally began creating the card game three years ago, and last fall he shared the project with the broader community through a Kickstarter campaign. Nearly 300 people backed the campaign, giving more than $12,000, far beyond his original goal.

The game, priced at $35, is available via "The Mennonite Game Card Game" Facebook page.

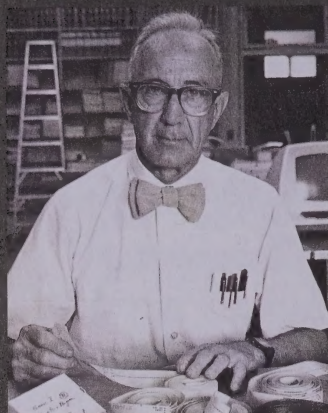

Correction

Thank you to Janet Umble Reedy for recognizing and identifying the late Connie Bryant Lockerbie '62 as the unidentified woman in the Fall/Winter 2017 issue "Lasting Ties" photo (p. 40). She was a home economics major.

In Memoriam

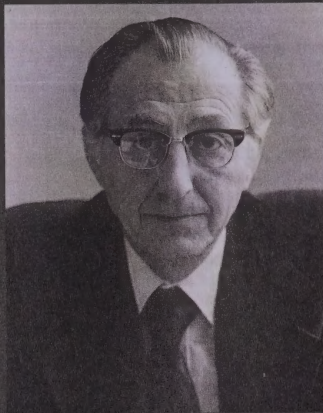

Art Smucker
Professor Emeritus of Chemistry
 (1923 - 2017)

Arthur A. Smucker '45, professor emeritus of chemistry at Goshen College, died December 25, 2017, at the age of 94. Smucker taught at Goshen College for 34 years, serving at various times as a chemistry professor, head of the chemistry department, tennis coach and director of computer services. Along with his wife, Oma, he also led Study-Service Trimesters (now Study-Service Term) for Goshen College in Guadeloupe (GC's first unit) and in Poland. He retired from Goshen College in 1987.

"Art was an excellent mentor, showing me ways to improve in the classroom and having fun in the laboratory setting," said Don Clemens '61, chemistry professor from 1967-2004. "Art had an inquisitive mind and learned computer programming, thus helping to start the computer department at GC. Art was a friend as well as a colleague."

Smucker is survived by his second wife, Carol Oyer '46; his children, Doug '71 (Karen '69), Brian '73 (Candi Horton), Don '75 (Jade Chandler), Cynthia Marcus '77 (Larry), Carol '79 (Chuck Back), and Robert '81 (Klaudia '78); three grandchildren; one great-grandchild; and four stepchildren, Rebecca Oyer '75, Kathy Oyer '77, Sarah Oyer '80 (Mike Cerceo), and Tim Oyer '85 (Joanne).

C. Norman Kraus
Professor Emeritus of Religion
 (1924 - 2018)

C. Norman Kraus, professor emeritus of religion, died April 6, 2018, in Harrisonburg, Virginia at the age of 94. Kraus taught courses in Bible, religion, theology and church history at Goshen College from 1951 to 1988, and served as founder and director of the Center for Discipleship at Goshen College. A student of both Anabaptism and Evangelicalism and its origins, he is the author of more than a dozen books on Christian faith and theology, and also served as a book review editor of the "Mennonite Quarterly Review."

"As a student at Goshen College, fraught as I was with deep questions of faith and ultimate meaning, C. Norman Kraus was a profound guide and mentor in the classroom and out," said former Goshen College president James E. Brenneman '77.

Kraus was married to Ruth Smith '42, who died in 1997. In 1998, Kraus married Rhoda Short Hess, who survives him, along with his five children, Yvonne Forman '68, Jo Anne Okamoto '69, John Kraus, Bonnie Kraus-Connelly '74 and Robert Kraus, along with their spouses, eight grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Mary Swartzendruber
 (1918 - 2018)

Mary A. Swartzendruber, 100, died March 5, 2018 in Goshen. She and her husband Ed, who died in 2015, had been longtime, faithful "angels" of the Goshen College Music Department and Music Center, giving more than $1,000,000 to the college since their first modest gift in 1954 when they were farmers. Although they never attended college themselves, their money for scholarships, instruments and more have helped hundreds of college students and their steadfast support has kept the music program humming. They were the parents of Kay Montgomery '64 and Doug Swartzendruber '68.
